The Grub-ſtreet Journal. NUMB. 353

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1736.

To the Authors of the Grub-ſtreet Journal.

London, Sept. 24, 1736.

Gentlemen,

I NEED not inform you, that I and ſeveral of my family are Doctors by inſtinct; and have had great ſucceſs in curing madneſs by matrimony. Being ſo doctorized and honoured with ſuch great alliances as I am, I take it extremely ill, that ſome of your Correſpondents have made free with my character in ſeveral of your Journals. ——— I ſhould have anſwered them much ſooner but for want of materials, and becauſe ſome of my Patients, who ſpell and point my Epiſtles for me, have not been lucid, but altogether raving. —— Tho' (to ſay the truth) I would however have ventured to ſtumble on in the road to Grub-ſtreet, as well as I could; but was prevented by the inceſſant noiſe of my Help-meet's clack, which for a long time has not afforded me a ſufficient interval for ſcribling. —— Some little time agone (God be thanked) both my Patients above-mentioned and myſelf, have been bleſſed with ſome ſort of reſpite, for a day or two; by which means I found an opportunity to write to an Almanack-maker, co-operator with my father; for him to ſupply me with matter: he ſoon return'd me the following Anſwer, which I beg the favour of you to inſert in one of your Papers; I am

Your much injured reader,

ARCULARIUS BUCKTHORNE.

Copy of the aforeſaid Letter.

'Dear Sir, Sept. 1, 1736.

'YOU may proceed, according to my humble opinion, in joining without any fear of conſequences, ſuch of your children as you ſhall at any time think fit, to any of your Patients under your cure for Lunacy. Eſpecially ſince I find what you tell me an Antagoniſt of yours jeſtingly aſſerts, to be true in earneſt; namely, that revulſion in the tail is the very beſt remedy under the cope of heaven for Maniacs. Marriage infallibly taking off the inſolita ad venerem proclivitas, obſervable as one ſymptom of this diſtemper. I build my opinion, or rather judgment, on the authority of the following Authors, whom I have drawn up in rank and file to fight your battles againſt your enemies, and thoſe who diſapprove of your proceedings: let them ſpeak for themſelves and you.

'In the firſt place, PETRUS FORESTUS calls venery, and conſequently marriage, aptiſſimum remedium, a moſt appoſite remedy; ſays, it blunts the force of anger, and remitting reaſon that was otherwiſe bound.

'Next come AVICENNA (Fen. iii. 20) and ORIBASIUS (Med. Collect. Lib. vi. Cap. 37.) who contend, out of RUFFUS and others, that many madmen have been cured by venery alone. When you have done all, ſaith AVICENNA, (Cap. de Iliſhi) there is no ſpeedier or ſafer courſe, than to join the parties together, according to the deſire and wiſh of the maniacal perſon; and ſo we have ſeen him quickly reſtored to his former health, that was languiſhed away to skin and bones; after his deſire was ſatisfied, his diſcontent ceaſed, and we thought it ſtrange; our opinion is therefore that, in ſuch caſes, nature is to be obey'd.

'MONTAITUS will have it, that it drives away all ſorrow and all illuſions of the brain, and purges the heart and brain from ill ſmokes and vapours that offend them; and if it be omitted (as VALESCUS ſuppoſeth) it makes the mind ſad, the body dull and heavy.

'Many other inconveniences of abſtaining from venery are reckoned up by MERCATUS and RODERICUS à CASTRO; but (as PLATERUS obſerves) ſi nubant ſanantur, marriage mends all.

'MARCELLUS DONATUS (Lib. ii.) tells us a ſtory to confirm this out of ALEXANDER BENEDICTUS, of a maid that was mad, ob menſes inhibitos, quæ cum in officinam meritoriam ineidiſſet, à quindecim viris eadem nocte compreſſa, menſium largo profluvio, quod pluribus annis ante conſtiterat, non ſine magno pudore, manè menti reſtituta diſceſſit.

'ÆSCULAPIUS himſelf, ſaith JASON PRETENSIS (Cap. 19. de Morbis Cerebri) cannot invent a better remedy for madneſs, than that a lover ſhould have his deſire. For Love is a ſort of a Pleuriſie, and therefore the beſt cure is to bleed them, and that in the hymenæal vein; as RHASIS excellently remarks.

'ARETÆUS, an old Author (Lib. iii. Cap. 3.) hath an inſtance of a young man, who, when no other means could prevail, was in this manner ſpeedily relieved. —— For which reaſon ARCULANUS (ARCULARIUS ſome read it) holds it the ſpeedieſt and beſt cure.

'Tis (to enumerate no more Authors) Ne me Criſpini ſcrinia lippi, compilâſſe putes, SAVANAROLA's laſt Receipt, ſi nihil aliud, nuptiæ et copulatio; 'tis a principal, an infallible remedy, the laſt, the ſole, and the ſafeſt refuge.

'What remains, dear Sir! but that (after having got theſe authorities engliſhed for your own peruſal, tho' they may remain as they are for that of other people:) you conjoin Lunaticks with your children, in the holy bonds of marriage? Then may they both kiſs and coo, lye and look babies in one another's eyes, or to uſe the more expreſſive words of a late moſt elegant Colonel, Then may they act as their Daddies did with their Minnies when they were begotten. Which will tame theſe mad creatures in good time.

'I am taken off from writing, ſome young Laſſes being deſirous of having their nativities caſt this minute; but remain

'Ever yours,

'CORNELIUS AGRIPPA.'

To the Authors of the Grub-ſtreet Journal.

Gentlemen,

Whereas it hath been moſt vilely reported, that my eldeſt ſon was lately taken in naked bed with another man's wife, theſe are to aſſure both your Worſhips and the Publick, that he acted upon better motives than luſt and ſenſual appetite; for he was only endeavouring to cure the woman of Madneſs, after our method.

Sept. 25. A. B.

Gentlemen,

THE Gentleman, who in your laſt Paper ſubſcribes himſelf EPHEMERISTES, is of the Law, therefore pleads (ſecundum Conſuetudinem Juriſconſorum.) That every thing a Lawyer writes or ſays ſhould be taken by intendment, it being contrary to known practice to be clear and expreſs. —— But in a ſhort time, for the good of the publick, I intend to publiſh a book of Innuendo's, thereby, at one view, to ſhew the intention of every man who writes without meaning, as does my friend EPHEMERISTES.

Yours to command,

PETER OPEN LAW.

P. S. The Chaſm is in the Gemtleman's head; he would have you believe, that he is privy to Secrets of Cabinet Councils, — and that, Diſtillers may exerciſe their trade with impunity (as before) 'till the Act is repealed. But EPHEMERISTES's opinion, I think, ſhould not be rely'd on (in this particular) leſt his intereſt ſhould prove to be the foundation of his judgment, ſecundum Legem.

† HORACE, Book I. Ode 5. paraphraſtically imitated:

WHAT ſlender Beau, on beds of roſes lay'd,
Courts thee to love in ſome cool Grotto's ſhade;
Whoſe kerchief liquid odours high perfume,
And ſcented wig e'n taints the fragrant room?
For whom does PYRRHA without art prepare
The flowing ringlets of her golden hair;
So plainly neat, without the leaſt exceſs,
So fine, without the luxury of dreſs?
Whoe'er he be, how oft will he in vain
Of broken vows, and fickle Gods complain!
The frowning ſeas, how much amaz'd, behold
Chang'd by dark ſtorms, in threatning ſurges roll'd!
Who now unſkill'd and ſtranger to deceit,
Truſts to your ſmiles, and counts his bliſs compleat.
Fond credu'ous fool, how amorouſly blind!
To think you'll conſtant ever prove and kind,
To hope th' entire poſſeſſion of your heart,
And that no other e'er ſhall ſhare a part.
Griev'd I reflect, how ſad a ſtate is theirs,
Who, unexperienc'd in coquettiſh airs,
Believe your fond deceitfulneſs ſincere,
Bleſs ev'ry ſigh, and catch each faithleſs tear.
But I, through G——s C——s S——s paſt,
And to the wiſh'd-for port arriv'd at laſt,
(As ſailors, whom the waves and winds at ſtrife
Sorely diſtreſs'd, and ſcarce let 'ſcape with life,
To BECKET hung their trowſers, ſafe on ſhore,
Reſolv'd to venture on the main no more,)
† To VENUS dedicate my uſeleſs arms,
And from this hour defie all female charms.

† Ad PYRRHAM.

N B. Mr. Cave's Magazine, ſince the publication of this having ſunk in Number above 2000, no wonder he is ſo highly incens'd againſt thoſe, who, he imagines, have occaſioned ſo great a Fall in his Stocks. The Countenance and Encouragement the publick has been pleaſed to give this Undertaking, has been ſuch a Thorn in his Side, he has not been able to endure with any manner of patience. How did the poor Man labour to cruſh it in its very Birth, by preventing, all he could, the means of its publication? What low, ſcurrilous Abuſes has he not thrown out againſt every Body concerned in it? But finding the publick grin turn'd upon himſelf, the Man is gone ſtark mad, or he would never have ventur'd to affirm Things in the Face of the Publick, the Falſity of which, he knows, can be evinced by more than fifty Witneſſes. Inſtead therefore of giving a formal Anſwer to the mean, Aſperſions he ſo liberally beſtows on the Character of a certain perſon, in a Note at the Bottom of one of his Advertiſements I ſhall only deſire of Mr. Cave, a true, direct, and candid Anſwer to the following Queſtions. Did he, as he aſſerts, diſmiſs the ſaid perſon, or rather, did not that perſon diſmiſs himſelf from his Service by a Letter under his own Hand, aſſigning the Reaſons for his ſo leaving him? Whether Mr. Cave has not on ſeveral Occaſions beſtow'd high Encomiums on the ſaid Perſon for his happy Talent at that kind of Writing in which he was chiefly employed, and for his unwearied Application to his Buſineſs? Whether the ſaid Perſon did not, at the Concluſion of a Month, for above three Years ſucceſſively, ſit up in his Printing-houſe, even in the Depth of Winter, 30, 40, and 50 Hours on a ſtretch, without Reſt or Sleep, to forward the finiſhing of his Book in time? Has not the ſaid Perſon wrote for him frequently two or three, generally one Sunday in a Month? If theſe Facts are ſo notorious, that they will not ſo much as admit of a Diſpute, how is it conceivable that the ſaid Perſon ſhould be guilty of intolerable Remiſſneſs in Mr. Cave's Buſineſs? If Mr. Cave had ſo great a Tenderneſs, as he pretends, for the Circumſtances of the ſaid Perſon, he is called upon to ſpecify ſome Inſtances of his Generoſity, particularly at thoſe monthly Returns of extraordinary Services juſt mentioned. Let him likewiſe declare, whether the ſaid Perſon for the firſt four Years of the undertaking, or near upon, did not write all the Copy for the Magazine, if all Letters from Correſpondents were not ſubmitted to his peruſal, and either laid by, or inſerted, according to the Judgment he paſs'd upon them? 'Tis confeſt, that all the Performances of the ſaid Perſon were conſtantly inſpected by another Perſon, which Perſon was Mr. Cave himſelf, who will ſcarce deny a Truth ſo well known, that his own capricious and whimſical Temper, which was ſcarce ever pleas'd with the ſame Thing half an Hour together, gave the ſaid Perſon an intolerable deal of Trouble? The ſaid Perſon has a great many more Queſtions of the ſame Tendency to ask; but would firſt be glad to ſee a poſitive and direct Anſwer to the foregoing. Or if Mr. Cave thinks his Quarrel with the ſaid Perſon of that Importance to intereſt the Publick in it, the ſaid Perſon challenges him to declare the worſt he has to ſay againſt him; and if the ſaid Perſon is not able to make good his Defence, he will contentedly wear the ſevereſt Stigma's of Mr. Cave's keeneſt Reſentment.

JOHN THIRKELL,
Doth hereby give Notice to all his Cuſtomers, &c. that he is removed from the Highlander in Smock-Alley, to the Snuff Mull, Tooley-ſtreet, near London-bridge, Southwark.

WHERE may be had, as uſual, the moſt ſovereign Cephalick Snuff, which was communicated by an eminent Phyſician, is of ſpecial good Uſe for all the Pains and Griefs of the Head and Brain, that cometh of a cold Cauſe; it quickening the Wit, ſharpens the Underſtanding, helps the Memory, prevents Giddineſs or Swimming in the Head, Drowſineſs or Dullneſs of the Mind, the Apoplexy and falling Sickneſs; provokes Sneezing, and thereby purgeth the Head and Brain of much Rheum and Corruption; dries up the thin Rheum that falleth upon the Stomach, which cauſeth a Conſumption; prevents the ſinging Noiſe and Pains in the Ears. Note, it hath lately been found effectual in curing Deafneſs, when all other Medicines have failed, eſpecially the obſtructing Quality coming by cold; it is good for the Eyes, and helps the Sight.

The Cephalick Snuff for Heat, which is of ſpecial good uſe for all the Griefs and Pains in the Head and Brain, proceeding from a hot Cauſe; cooleth the diſtemperd Heat of the Brain in Frenzies, or through Want of Sleep, and hot cholerick Humours, even rectifying the underſtanding of thoſe that have got too much of any Sort of ſtrong Liquor, and eaſeth the pain in the Head cauſed thereby; ſtayeth the Rheums that diſtill from the Head and Brain into the Eyes, cooleth and tempereth the Heat and Inflammations therein; as likewiſe Heats and Fluſhings in the Face, by the cooling and drying Quality thereof; ſtayeth the Defluctions of Rheums that fall upon the Gums and Teeth, ſo eaſeth the pains in them. Note, They far exceed any yet made, both for Beauty and Variety of Services, without Adulteration to ſet them off. Likewiſe makes right Scotch, High and Low dried, fine Spaniſh, plain and French Rappee, with divers other choice Snuffs.

He alſo hath improved to a higher pitch than ever, Dr. Steaglton's Bitters. Note, in preparing of which, being favoured with the original Receipt, and diligently conſidering the Efficacy of all the Ingredients in it, I expected it might be improved fully to anſwer the Aſſertions ſpecified in the Direction Bills; this therefore is the Fruit of much Labour and Study, and I may ſafely aver, it hath not its equal in the World for Beauty, Flavour and Efficacy; but its own excellent Vertues ſpeak forth its own praiſe.

Alſo Daffy's Elixir Salutis improved from the original Receipt, ſo that theſe rich Elixirs are better than famous in thoſe Doctor's days. Godfrey's General Cordial, the Grand Elixir for purifying and purging the Blood. Elixir Proprietatis, Dr. Boſtock's Purging Cordial, the Bathing Spirits, fine Hungary Water, and fine Spirits of Lavander.

As likewiſe a curious Cholick Tincture, or General Medicine, being a ſafe, innocent and ſucceſsful Cordial for the Cholick and Gripes, all Sorts of Fluxes, Gravel and Stone; being of a Chearing, Sweetning, Warming, Searching, Cleanſing, Friendly, Balſamick, Reſtorative Nature, pacifying the moſt ſevere and terrible racking pains; it evacuates by Tranſpiration, by Urine, and breaking of Wind very potently, freeing the Body of viſcous Humours lurking in it; (it generally anſwers the purpoſe, without the fatigue of Sweating, Vomiting, Purging, Binding, or Opiatick Medicines, and free of the Hazard and bad Conſequences that too often happen) being a gallant Sweetner of the Blood, and preventer of Infection; for the Cholick and Gripes, pains in the Stomach, it is the moſt ſpeedy and effectual Remedy yet found out, one or two Spoonfuls having freed them of the pain in a very ſhort Space of Time to Admiration, when all other Remedies have failed, therefore I give it the Title of Cholick Tincture. It is likewiſe very effectual (tho' not ſo ſpeedy) for Fluxes, the Stone and Gravel, whether in the Reins, Bladder, or Kidneys, as alſo for piſſing of Blood, proceeding from Ulcerations in the Bladder, Reins, or Kidneys, or Excoriations by Stone or Gravel, or piſſing by Drops; likewiſe the Phthiſick and Conſumption of the Lungs, Melancholy and nervous Diſtempers, Scurvies and Dropſies, Worms and Agues; it opens all Obſtructions and Stoppages whatſoever, digeſteth and diſſolveth whatſoever hath Need thereof with admirable Speed. When this Elixir comes to be as much known as ſome others, (but this is the firſt Time of making it publick) Mercurial and Antimonial Medicines will be of little Value; for when people may have Health without Hazard and Violence, the wiſe part of Mankind will rather chuſe it. This excellent Elixir is ſo great a Purifier and preventer of Infection, that if it was but made uſe of as the Direction Bills given with the Bottles direct, the Small Pox and Meaſles would not be ſo rife nor mortal. I am of Opinion, there would not be one in twenty troubled with this dreadful Diſtempers.

For Children it is the moſt curious Cordial made publick, whether there Afflictions be Worms, Rickets, the Stone Convulſions, Gripes, Fluxes, or any Diſtemper proceeding from Wind, Stoppages, or Crudities, gendered by Means of indigeſted Matter, the Effects of their cold and weak Stomachs, which is the grand and original Cauſe of thoſe their Diſtempers; it not only giveth Eaſe and maketh lively and brisk, but taketh away the Cauſe.

For a further Diſcovery of the Virtues and Uſe of this and the Elixirs above, I refer to the Direction Bills given with the Bottles, where all Merchants, Captains of Ships, Shopkeepers and others, may be ſupplied, with great Encouragement, or any charitable diſpoſed perſon, that is willing to help their poor Neighbours, that cannot help themſelves, may be ſupplied with what will prove to their Satisfaction. Likewiſe any Dealer that wants Repute for the Goods they deal in, will find what will commend themſelves from one to another (as well as where they are already ſold) which is the Life of Trade.
